Knowledge for Action

Explore ideas, think strategically,
make an impact.

17+ courses in liberal arts and sciences

20+ courses in business

Each line represents a required course.

Business makes things happen and affects every part of society. Whatever you want to do, a degree from Wharton will give you the knowledge and experience to do it.

With Wharton's combination of business and liberal arts in the Ivy League, you will gain a strong foundation of skills and a framework for thinking creatively and strategically to solve problems. You'll have the flexibility to follow your interests as you engage in hands-on experiences, gain invaluable practice working in teams, and learn how to use your knowledge and skills to make a difference.

Join our students as they put knowledge into action. As the leader in business education, we'll be there to empower you every step of the way. Are you up for the challenge?

Explore Business and More

Wharton provides innovative interdisciplinary options and active experiential learning in business, combined with all the resources of Penn.

Start your own business, manage a clothing brand, or even build a new car—with a degree from Wharton you can go wherever your path leads you and be more effective in the career you choose.

The Wharton BS in Economics—It's a Different Way of Learning

Wharton offers a bachelor of science in economics, but studying business at Wharton and studying economics in a liberal arts program are very different.

If you major in economics at a liberal arts school, you'll take courses focused on theories, history, and modeling. You'll start with a theory or abstract idea and then look for problems to understand how the theory applies.

At Wharton you'll study a range of business subjects—from accounting to entrepreneurship to policy. Classes focus on problem solving with real-world examples; you'll look for solutions and then examine theories to see how they might apply.

Flexibility and Opportunity

Every semester you can take classes at Wharton and at least one other school at Penn, including eight of our graduate schools. In fact, 40% of your required courses will be taken outside of Wharton. Why? Because studying business within social, political, and historical contexts makes you a better agent of change. It also means that you will have even more opportunities and paths to choose from when you graduate.

Experience Innovative Learning

As the first collegiate business school, Wharton invented undergraduate business education, and we're still innovating. Wharton students learn the latest business ideas as they're being created.

Learn from the Best

Our 225+ professors—the largest, most published, faculty at any business school—work directly with leading global businesses, nonprofit organizations, and government agencies.

Our classes are challenging and intellectually rigorous, but at the same time, they're collaborative and full of interaction. Professors customize their teaching methods to the needs of each class, so you'll find everything from the Socratic method and traditional lectures to case studies and computer simulations.

All Wharton undergraduate lectures are taught by professors, not graduate teaching assistants. Our professors are available to our students. They hold office hours, have lunch with students, serve as concentration advisors, judge case competitions, and mentor students for research projects.

Research Opportunities

Look deeper into the questions that interest you by engaging in research. You can customize what you're learning and pursue a topic in depth with help from a faculty scholar, through a School-sponsored program, summer experience, or independent study.

Entrepreneurship

Interested in starting your own company? There isn't a better place to be if you have a business idea of your own. Wharton has one of the largest programs with faculty, resources, and know-how to help you make your idea a reality.

Technology to Enhance Learning

Wharton provides a host of innovative resources that redefine how business is studied and how business insights are shared. You can manage a billion-dollar stock portfolio, control a country's fishing fleet, or prepare a marketing plan for a totally new product—all through simulations.

Lead and Work in a Team

We're serious about working together to achieve common goals. In fact, our team-based curriculum makes it difficult to succeed if you're only in it for yourself. Our virtual classrooms and our home in Huntsman Hall were intentionally designed to facilitate teamwork.

Management 100

In Management 100, the hallmark of your freshman year, you'll work in a team of 10 students to plan and execute a community service project for a Philadelphia nonprofit. You'll make some of your closest friends while learning key leadership concepts, experiencing what it means to work in a team, and discovering who you are as a leader.

Beyond the Classroom

Learning about leadership and teamwork isn't something that's restricted to the classroom. You might be surprised to find that your greatest lessons are learned while working on a new business with your classmates, or consulting for a local nonprofit while on a Wharton Leadership Venture. Getting involved is also a great way to flex your leadership muscles. And with over 300 clubs at Penn and over 40 at Wharton, it's easy to jump right in.

Spotlight: Wharton Leadership Ventures

Take part in learning experiences structured to build your individual leadership capabilities. From working with an Iron Chef to getting an inside look at the Trauma Center at Penn, you will venture into settings where you will learn from the experiences of others whose leadership was on the line.

“Wharton creates an environment where students are not afraid to take risks in the pursuit of their entrepreneurial goals. I have been able to find mentors, conduct research, secure funding for my own business, and work with CEOs and other senior executives to learn how successful businesses are built from the ground up.”

Katlyn Grasso | Buffalo, NY

“Management 100 wasn't about learning textbook material. It was about learning about yourself and how to interact with a close team of ten to deliver a meaningful project that truly impacted people's lives.”

Sam Mattis | East Brunswick, NJ

Make a Better World

Your classmates will come from around the world, and you'll do things like study abroad, minor in a language, or learn from foreign business executives through the Wharton International Program or a Global Modular Course. You'll leave with a global outlook and become part of a network of 94,000 Wharton alumni around the world.

Choose Your International Experience

We live in a global society, and that's reflected in every part of Wharton and Penn. Nearly all Wharton courses incorporate international issues and trends. Students have a language requirement and are encouraged to study abroad or participate in international trips. Wharton has over 20 semester-length programs with the world's top business schools, specifically designed to fit our curriculum, and Penn offers more than 100 in the liberal arts.

Do Something Meaningful

Wharton supports initiatives that foster social responsibility in and out of the classroom. Management 100 projects are designed to have a positive social impact, like revamping marketing programs to help find foster homes for teens in Philadelphia. And, during a recent Wharton International Program course in Panama, students earned course credit while participating in service-learning projects and visiting socially responsible companies.

Spotlight: College Town within a City

One of the best things about being a student at Penn is having the city of Philadelphia at your doorstep.

The University of Pennsylvania, America's first university, boasts a unified campus that houses all of Penn's vibrant undergraduate, graduate, and professional schools—a unique interdisciplinary environment in historic Philadelphia.

Philly is big enough to have lots to do, yet small enough to get to know. Penn students live right in the middle of University City, a neighborhood with its own stores, restaurants, and movie theaters. And you are just a hop away from everything Philadelphia has to offer, whether you want to go for a run in Fairmount Park, or try out the restaurants and shops of Rittenhouse Square.

Support for Diversity

At Penn, you'll find a diverse community supportive of a unique mix of cultures and beliefs, as well as the most international students of any Ivy League university. You'll discover clubs, centers, and events that reflect the incredible diversity of our community—from the Penn Arab Student Society to the LGBT Center to discussion panels held by Check One, a group dedicated to supporting multiracial students.

Advising and Support

From house deans to Wharton's dedicated team of professional academic advisors, our faculty and staff will be there to support you every step of the way. Our large support network helps you get the most out of your college experience and find the path that's right for you. You'll never be on your own at Wharton.

Alumni—Get Connected for Life

Alumni are constantly coming to campus to talk to current students about their experiences and to give advice through our alumni/student network. No matter what you do in the future, you'll have lifelong connections and friendships with the business leaders of today and tomorrow. On top of that, you're part of Penn's alumni network, with 300,000 graduates around the world.

Open More Doors

A Wharton education prepares you to explore and create solutions to today's most significant business and social issues. Our graduates are proof that you will be able to apply what you learn to any industry and any career.

More Options Now

Each year, our graduates take on diverse jobs at top companies around the world, including Amazon, Blackstone Group, Goldman Sachs, Google, Kraft Foods, Macy's, McKinsey, Microsoft, Time Inc., and Venture for America. Some Wharton alumni pursue entrepreneurial ventures full time, while others advance their studies in law, medicine, and other fields.

Business Now, MBA Later?

With Wharton's rigorous business education, you can begin making an impact sooner. Nearly two-thirds of Wharton undergraduate alumni find that they never need to return to school for an MBA in order to advance their careers.

More Growth Later

The knowledge you gain takes on depth and insight as you blaze your individual path. Five years after graduation, our alumni report advancing in a range of careers, including brand management, education, entrepreneurship, financial management, health care, investment banking, law, nonprofit management, private equity, and technology.

Connections for Life

You'll have ties to leaders changing practice and influencing every industry—Wharton's alumni network, the largest of any business school at 94,000 strong, and Penn's, extending to 300,000 leaders in every field around the world.

Penn Is Affordable

Penn's commitment to financial aid makes the possibility of a Wharton education a reality for students from all walks of life. We encourage you to apply.

Penn admits students on the basis of academic and personal accomplishments without regard to their ability to pay. Applying for financial aid does not affect your admissions decision. Penn has eliminated loans from need-based aid packages, regardless of family income level. Students have the option to use loans to supplement their aid packages.
